Marvin Glover - MUSE:

New album set for May, 2005 release:

CD Release Party Announcement:

Starving Dog Records, a division of Glover Communications and Productions, has set May 31, 2005 as the release date for MUSE by Marvin Glover, the follow up album to the 2001 debut One. This full-length LP features twelve new songs and finds Glover teamed up with producer/engineers, Mark Clem of Soul Kitchen Studios and Larri "Bubba" Jones of Contact Create.

Recorded in Seattle over the calendar year of 2004, MUSE showcases the creative talents of Glover, as singer, arranger and producer. Pulling from his early roots in soul, rock and new wave, Marvin explores the sonic landscape while offering commentary on personal and social issues. He reminds us to be true to ourselves and follow our own Muse letting inspiration guide us towards personal fulfillment.

"All the songs on MUSE are written about my experiences, and the Muses that guided me through the process," Glover explains, "I aim to be honest with my writing. I want to present an honest positive vibe."

MUSE is a fusion of styles reflecting the uniqueness of Marvin Glover's diverse sound, songwriting and musical arrangements influenced by the likes of David Bowie, Tears for Fears, The Brothers Johnson and Brit Rock. With his voice in fine form, Marvin is ready to present a new collection of provocative songs while on tour this summer.

"Changes," the CD's debut single, reveals the transition in Marvin's music from coffeehouse rock to funk and groove. MUSE is scheduled to ship for immediate airplay to multiple rock, pop, college and alternative radio formats the weekend of May 23. There will be cross-promotional campaigns and some great PR. "I'm going beyond a grass roots approach for this record," Glover stated. "Pre-sales have been a major strategy of my independent work. This method has fueled every project that I've done and helped me to continue spreading the word and sharing my music with thousands of contacts in my fan base. Now with my label and a bigger team behind me, it's full speed ahead."

Marvin Glover is already coordinating several events over the next few months to present his new music to members of the media, radio, and retail communities. A CD Release Party will take place Friday, May 20th, at the Premier Club Showroom in Seattle, WA featuring a full band performance. The set list will include songs from MUSE and his prior releases, One and Message to the Nation.

Glover's style of soulful funk and groove rock attracts listeners of all musical tastes and generations. Live appearances, up-to-date news, discography, booking, ordering and general information can be found on Marvin's web site at: <http://www.marvinglover.com>.
